RACING AT HARLEM.

Now that St. Louis has closed, the tracks around Chicago have full sway and the pick of horses and jockeys in the west. This was clearly demonstrated yesterday at Harlem. There was any number of new faces in evidence, some of them being jockeys, others owners and bookmakers and turf followers in general. In fact, the new arrivals were so many that it swelled the usual small Monday crowd to the size of that which usually attends a good day later in the week.

Twenty bookmakers "cut in," and what a harvest they must have reaped, as six heavily backed favorites were bowled over.

The presence of Tommy Burns in the saddle was the cause of making one false favorite—Rosavannah—that was beaten, and then two natural favorites—Tulane and San Cecilia—were defeated through carelessness, bad luck and poor riding in general.

The defeat of Tulane was the sensational feature of the racing and a costly one for his owners, McGuigan & Walker. The colt was far the best and only the greed of an owner to get a long price against a good horse through putting up an incompetent jockey was the cause of his defeat.

Mr. McGuigan had given the same jockey that burned his and Mr. Walker's money up on Tulane a chance at Harlem once before. He put him up on Arlington in the last race of the day, August 4. This horse appeared to be in a soft spot and was a stanch favorite at 8 to 5, but whatever chance he had of winning was ruined by the wretched ride he got.

With the Arlington ride fresh in the minds of racegoers Mr. McGuigan had confidence enough to trust a good horse, like Tulane, in Morrison's hands, and furthermore think well enough of it for him and his partner, Mr. Walker, of Hot Springs, to bet on it.

Of course if Morrison was put up for a price it was a very wise move, for the public had enough of him on Arlington and refused to bet on Tulane at any price. The consequence was the colt opened up at 2 to 1 and hurriedly went back to 2½ to 1 and better. Then the "wise money" began to pour in and the colt was backed down to 9 to 5 and less.

On form Tulane seemed much the best, and when Judge Hamilton, who keeps a very close line on form, learned that Morrison was to ride he sent for Mr. McGuigan and suggested that a better boy be put on the colt. Mr. McGuigan, however, thought Morrison was good enough, and in his airy way informed Judge Hamilton that "he (the judge) would be surprised after the race." The judge was surprised all right enough and was also very sore, and after Morrison made his weight he was told that his occupation as a jockey had seen its best and also its last days. The boy was suspended indefinitely.

The story of the race is easily told. Morrison knew he was on the best horse and did not want to show him up. He fooled along with the other boys down the backstretch and on the turn for home went very wide and lost a lot of ground. This did not hurt the horse any, as he was simply cantering and below the sixteenth post he got to the front again. Here it was that Morrison got his work in. Sitting up like a stovepipe, he was grinning and playing with Jenkins and Burns, who were on the inside of him and their horses dead beaten, and for an instant, Morrison, with victory in sight, took a trip to "Kipsville." Nutt, on the outside with Canace, came along with a terrific rush and when Morrison returned to earth again, the race was over and Canace had won. It was a rank piece of carelessness and the crowd did not hesitate to hiss the rider when he returned to the stand.

Mr. McGuigan was very sore, but for once in his career, had nothing to say.

San Cecilia's defeat, while it was the result of a poor ride and bad racing luck combined, was lost in the shadow of Tulane's downfall, through Morrison's stupidity. Jenkins rode San Cecilia and after getting into a jam on the far turn he was compelled to pull up and go around the entire field. This naturally set her far back and when the finish came Jenkins put up a rather tame finish and let Silver Fizz, handsomely ridden by Nutt, win by a nose on the post. Everything considered, although beaten, San Cecilia ran a grand race. She was giving away much weight to every other starter, and to win Silver Fizz had to step five furlongs in 1:00.4.

There were two races at a mile and an eighth, but both furnished tame contests. Malaize, at the false price of 6 to 1, won one and Jim McCleavy, also at a false price, but heavily backed, captured the other. In both instances the winners set their own pace and at the end there was daylight between them and the second horses.

Free Lady, well ridden by Vittoe, won the initial three-quarter dash running away from Jim Gore II., and J. T. easily disposed of Free Hand and Ed Tipton in the last race.

Besides Tommy Burns there were three other additions to the riding talent. They are W. Frost, Kitley and Dugan. The last named is a most promising lightweight. He can ride at 85 pounds, and those that have seen him perform say he rides with excellent judgment for so light a boy.

LICALZI'S SALE.

In the main Tony Licalzi's horses, sold at Harlem Saturday, brought fair prices, although even if she is raced no more Donna Rita is worth three times the amount she brought. Al Fresco was easily the star of the sale and was the object of considerable competition in which J. Irwin, "Rome" Reepass, Sidney Bender and others took part, Irwin outstaying his competitors and securing a good horse. The figures of the sale are:

Al Fresco, b. c. 4, by Eolus—Gladiola; J. Irwin.....	$2,600

GOSSIP OF THE TURF.

"Snapper" E. H. Garrison, who retired from riding a few years ago because of difficulty in reducing his weight, has decided to return to the saddle and become a steeplechase jockey. For the past few months Garrison has been constantly at work reducing, with the result that yesterday, at Sheepshead Bay, he tipped the scales at 136 pounds. He feels confident that he can reduce much more without injurious effects. It is his intention to ride during the meetings this fall at Sheepshead Bay, Gravesend and Morris Park and will apply, shortly, to the National Steeplechase, Hunt and Pony Association for a license. He is enthusiastic over his prospects and feels confident that he will regain the prestige as a steeplechase jockey that he earned while riding in the flat. His first mount will probably be W. C. Whitney's Buena during the coming meeting at Sheepshead Bay.

AFTER THE FUTURITY.

The consensus of expert opinion after the race was that it was truly run. There was not a horseman who had a candidate in it, not a jockey who had a mount, and not a trainer who had anything to do with the preparation of one of the starters that had any excuses to offer. Pat Dunne voiced the general view of the situation when he said:

"It was a good horserace from start to finish, and the best horse won. Chacornac was not only the best horse in this particular race, but he is about the best two-year-old that we have seen this season. His race today was only a good exercise gallop. He could have won as far as Spencer desired."

John Hyland, who heard the Missouri turfman make this statement, indorsed it.

"I thought that I had the winner in Brigadier," Hyland said, "but I was fooled. Brigadier is a good two-year-old but he is not as good a horse as the one that won."

The main reason that the race was truly won, and so satisfactory, was that the start was prompt and good. It was one of Mr. Fitzgerald's best efforts. No time was wasted in fretting about, which always proves so disastrous to high strung racehorses, particularly when they are young and keyed up to racing pitch. They were nicely bunched when he said "Come on!" the first time and he threw down his flag. The horsemen who had candidates in the race, the bettors and the crowd generally were immensely gratified, for long delays at the post under such circumstances are as trying to the nerves of the spectators as they are harmful to the horses.

Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., who was watching the race from the top of the stand, exclaimed: "Good! Good! I never saw a better start!"

Maher, the youngster who spoiled the start of the Suburban Handicap by refusing to take Banastar up to his field, said to Jimmy Rowe just after he had dismounted: "It was the best start I ever saw. We were all in motion when the flag fell, and I don't believe that there was a difference of one length between the first and last horses."

Bullman, Taral, Lewis, Clawson, Simms, Burns and O'Connor all said the same thing. If any colt had an advantage at the start, it was Modrine, Bullman's mount. He was moving a bit faster than any of the others when the flag fell and Bullman, thoroughly alive to his advantage, hustled the colt along for all he was worth. He maintained his advantage to the elbow, but there never was a time when he could get away from Spencer and Chacornac.

"He was simply breezing at my horse's quarters," Bullman said, "and when Spencer got ready to go up, he sailed past me as easily as falling off a log. Modrine is not game and threw it up as soon as Chacornac passed him."

Maher, who piloted Virginia Earle, had this to say of Chacornac: "When the flag fell I hustled Virginia Earle up to the front as quickly as possible. Modrine had jumped out in front at the fall of the flag and I wanted to catch him and make him quit, to give Chacornac a chance. I knew that filly had speed enough to do the trick, but I doubted whether Chacornac could keep up for the first half. He fooled me. I had scarcely drawn clear of the bunch before Chacornac was at my side loping easily along with his mouth open and his ears pricked forward. It was nothing but play for him and in place of Virginia Earle killing Modrine off for him, he killed Modrine off for the filly and also made the filly quit. She began to stagger at the head of the homestretch and I shouted to Spencer:

"You go on, Spence, I'm beaten."

"This is easy," Spencer said, "I can take care of anything in this bunch."

"I hit my filly a couple of good cracks just for luck, but Chacornac had tied her up in a knot and I quit whipping her. There is no use beating a filly to death after you see that she is up against it."

When Spencer dismounted he patted the Juvenal gelding affectionately on the neck and said, "Nice horse." To Jimmy Rowe, who was out on the track to hear his story of the race, he added: "He is as good a two-year-old as I ever knew. It was an easy win."

Chacornac was bred by L. S. and W. P. Thompson, the sons of the late Colonel Thompson, of Virginia, at the Brookdale farm in New Jersey. More Futurity winners have come from that establishment than from any other, which is a splendid tribute to Colonel Thompson's sagacity. The most recent Brookdale winners were Requit and L'Alouette. Chacornac's sire, Juvenal, is an English horse. He is a chestnut with a blazed face, of heroic proportions and splendid muscular development. Colonel Thompson went himself to England to make the selection. When he brought Juvenal home, many oldtime American turfmen told him that he had made a mistake.

"Juvenal never was a great horse," Colonel Thompson was told.

"Maybe he wasn't," the Virginian replied, "but you watch and see if he does not make a good stallion. Look at his size and his fiery action and hunt up his pedigree."

Col. Thompson did not live to see one of the get of Juvenal win an important race and American turfmen still held that the big chestnut was a counterfeit when Juvenal went under the hammer at the Thompson sale at Morris Park two years ago. Nor was the dramatic eloquence of William Easton, the auctioneer who conducted the sale, sufficient to convince them that they were making a mistake. The bidding was listless and the splendid looking chestnut went to the California turfman, J. B. Haggin, for the ridiculously low price of $2,500.

Chacornac is not unlike his sire in appearance, particularly behind the withers. He has Juvenal's big barrel and tremendous quarters. He also has great depth through the heart. Chacornac is not a good looking horse from an artistic point of view. He is rather ugly, in fact. He is slightly away-backed and has a coarse looking head and neck. Great muscular power rather than grace is his chief characteristic. Chacornac's dam, Laetitia, is one of the old Brookdale matrons. The last good horse she produced was the speedy Elkins. Elkins was a three-year-old along with Ornament and The Friar, but he did not do well. His temper, which he inherited from Uncas, his sire, always stood in his way. In this particular Chacornac is nothing like Elkins. The big bay is as sweet-tempered as a kitten. He eats well, sleeps well, and is a veritable glutton for work. Nearly every shrewd horseman who saw yesterday's race predicted that he would make a splendid three-year old. Chacornac has the size. He stands a full sixteen hands in his racing plates and has a tremendous frame. It is marvelous that an animal of his size can get in motion so quickly. W. P. Burch said before the Futurity field went to the post yesterday that Chacornac was as quick a beginner as any two-year-old he ever saw except Hamburg.

Chacornac was named by Jimmy Rowe after a creek which runs through the Brookdale. The creek got its name from the Delaware Indians who used to inhabit that part of New Jersey before it was settled by Lord Carteret's colonists. Chacornac was developed by Rowe, and although the Thompsons have always had a financial interest in him, he won his maiden race in Rowe's colors.

Chacornac has many stake engagements at Sheepshead Bay, and he will fill them as long as he remains in condition.

Brigadier was bred at August Belmont's Nursery Stud in Kentucky. His dam, St. Bridget, never produced a really great horse, but she was the mother of the very useful campaigner, St.
Bartholomew. Brigadier is a brown horse of good size and fine proportions. He is an easier animal to handle than the average member of the Rayon d'Or family, and John Hyland did not have a great deal of trouble in getting him ready for yesterday's race. Mr. Hyland did not think that Brigadier could beat Chacornac yesterday, but he told his friends before the race that he would make all the others hump themselves.

After the race Hyland said that Brigadier had run his race and done quite as well as he expected: "He will make a good three-year-old and will win long distance races. These sprints are against a horse of his kind. He is too slow at the start." Brigadier cooled out nicely and went back to his stable looking apparently as fresh as he did when he left the paddock to go to the post. Like Chacornac, Brigadier is pretty well engaged, and will be seen in a good many races hereabouts before the snow flies. Tommy Burns, who rides him, will go west tomorrow. Burns is the regular rider for J. W. Schorr's stable, which is at Chicago, and was only engaged by Hyland to ride Brigadier in this one race.

Windmere, the horse that finished third, was bred by Gen. W. H. Jackson at the Belle Meade farm. His sire, Iroquois, is at the head of the Belle Meade stud, and Trade Wind, his dam, is one of the best broodmares in the country.
Windmere is a strapping big chestnut, not at all unlike his full brother Gotham, in conformation and color. He is quite as big a horse as Gotham was at the same age. This was Windmere's first race. He looked pretty well when he warmed up, but went to the post a bit sore and his stable was not especially sanguine of success. Arthur Featherstone's only bet on the race was a one-two-three wager. Mr.
Featherstone was gratified at Windmere's showing, and so was Julius Bauer, his trainer.
Bauer picked Windmere at the Belle Meade yearling sale last season as a good colt and paid a fancy price for him. He believes that Windmere will beat the best of the two-year-olds before the season is over.

The showing of the Regina Stable's Plucky was rather disappointing. Harry Lewis who rode the Great Tom colt said that the trouble was in Plucky's inability to keep up in the headlong rush to the elbow. "Plucky got away
well," Lewis told Tom Green, "but the pace was so hot that he could not keep up. He was running gamely at the elbow, but when I saw that I could not overtake the leaders I eased him up." Plucky, like Windmere, was bred by Gen. Jackson at Belle Meade and his dam was the mare Endurance. St. Finnan's race was a vast improvement over any previous effort. He was outfooted at first but closed with a great burst of speed at the end and was headed out in the last bound by Windmere. Both Billy Lakeland and W. L. Powers, Marcus Daly's eastern agent, were pleased with the Tammany colt's showing.

"He ran about as well as I expected," Lakeland said, "and will win in first-class company later on. St. Finnan was not himself in the spring but he has improved a lot since I retired him."

St. Finnan was bred at Marcus Daly's farm in Montana and was developed by Fred Mossom.
Mossom turned the colt over to Lakeland when he took charge of the Keeney yearlings at Brookdale last June.—New York Sun.

Winner—Br. m, by Free Knight—Fauna III.
Post 12 minutes. Start good. Won easily; second eased at the end after an early drive. Free Lady broke running and always held the others safe. She had speed to loan. Jim Gore II. had no excuses. He was away well, always had clear sailing, but could never get within striking distance of Free Lady. Bertha Nell, although not interfered with, dropped back very suddenly at the half mile ground. The filly then took a notion to run and finished stoutly. The first three were much better than the others.

Scratched—(14285) Tenole, 104.
Overweights—Inverary II., 4 pounds.

Winner—B. f, by St. Florian or Mars—La Misere.
Post 10 minutes. Start good. Won staggering and out to the last ounce. The next two were doing their best. Malaise had the most speed of the party but was tiring fast and barely lasted long enough to win. Mary Prather ran much better than she did in lower company when last out. Hanlight ran a fair race. So did Bert Davis. Rosavannah tired and fell back after running well for about a mile. The field was badly strung out at the finish.

Scratched—(14139) Long Dandy, 97.
Overweights—Reflect, 34 pounds; Hanan, 5.
Malaise, place, 2 to 1; show, evens. Mary Prather, place, 15 to 1; show, 6 to 1. Hanlight, show, 8 to 5. Rosavannah, place, 3 to 5; show, out. Bert Davis, place, evens; show, 1 to 2.

Winner—Ch. f, by Creighton—Nellie Bell.
Off at the first break to a good start. Won driving to the limit; the other three were driving also. Canace's win was a scratch and very lucky. Nutt brought her up on the outside and stole the race from Tulane. Morrison's ride on the latter was a nightmare. He loafed along with the horse until at the head of the stretch, and then he lost many lengths by making a wide turn. The colt was so much the best, however, that he easily overcame this disadvantage and at the sixteenth post was winning easily. Here Morrison took a nap and threw the race away. Fausturo and Sea Lion both hung at the end. For rank carelessness and the bad race on Tulane the judges set Morrison down indefinitely.

Canace, place, 6 to 5. Tulane, place, 7 to 10. Fausturo, place, 6 to 5. Sea Lion, place, 7 to 10.

Winner—Ch. c, by Linden—Verbona.
Off at the first break to a good start. Won well in hand; second cleverly; third and fourth doing their best. Jim McCleevy had splendid speed and always held the race safe. Considering his last good race the price on him was out of line. Rosa Masso ran to the notch. So did Blue Lick who is improving with every start. Isabey was stiff and sore in his preliminary and seemed to prop all through the race. Throw this race out as to Isabey. Chauncey Fisher was always prominent.

Jim McCleevy, place, 8 to 5; show, 4 to 5. Rosa Masso, place, 6 to 5; show, 1 to 2. Blue Lick, show, 9 to 10. Isabey, place, 4 to 5; show, 2 to 5.

Time, 12, 23, 35, 48, 1:00.
Winner—Ch. f, by Silver Fox—Tonique.
Post 5 minutes. Start good. Won in a long, hard drive of two; third and fourth were driving also. Silver Fizz ran a smashing good race and was much the best ridden. Nutt took the shortest route and also finished with power. On the other hand Jenkins got into a jam on the far turn with San Cecilia and was then compelled to take the long route. He also lost more ground than was necessary on the stretch turn and did not finish with his usual vim and power. It was a good race and no disgrace for San Cecilia to be beaten, considering the amount of weight she was giving away. Erla d'Or had a very rough journey. Gussie Fay displayed phenomenal speed, but quit badly.

Overweights—La Carina, 2 pounds.
Silver Fizz, place, 7 to 10; show, out. San Cecilia, place, out. Erla d'Or, show, out.

Winner—B. c, by Justice Lyon—Tillie S.
Post 5 minutes. Start good. Won handily; second and third were driving to the limit. J. J. T. was cleverly placed during the early part of the journey and in the stretch went to the front on call. The colt was tiring at the end and bore in. In doing so he slightly interfered with Free Hand. The interference was not of a nature to cause a disqualification of the winner but nevertheless it almost cost Free Hand second place. She was on the rail directly behind J. J. T. and in the last twenty yards was jumping on him. Ed Tipton came with a spurt and although Free Hand had something left to stall him off she was in a bad place and could not use it. The race was always between the first two.

Scratched—(14289) Croesus, 109; 14290 Tony Licalzi, 104; 14251 Necedah, 104; 13155 King Bermuda, 104; 13831 Teutons, 102; 14232 Cordial, 94.

Winner—Ch. c, by Sir Modred—Oran.
Post 5 minutes. Start good. Won easily. Bendoran is in great form and outclassed the others at the distance. He is a really good sprinter. St. Callatine is good. So is Jinks. They both ran their races. St. Clair was clearly outrun all the way and did not show his usual turn of speed.
